THE TIME HAS COME, THE WALRUS SAID

Here's a story about a glass dealer who wants to help folk prevent glass losses from Hallowee pranks.

The West Coast Glass Co., and other dealers probably concurring, emphasizes that a little kerosene rubbed on the exposed glass surface will serve to minimize the losses that might result from soaping or otherwise marking up windows. The kerosene forms a film of protection against glue and other substances, which when warmed by the sun cause glass to chip and disintegrate. A chemical discovery of the current year has helped to eliminate some such loss, according to Mr. Baxter of the West Coast Glass Co. It removes the Halloween smears, for example, so no glue or like matter can do damage. But if you have none of this chemical, and you want to spare your windows, just try the kerosene application. Of course that won't stop boys from being boys on Halloween but it's passed along for whatever it may be worth.

Hey, Mr. Ickes; California Gas Consumption Still High

No letup n the steadily increasing use of gasoline is indicated by latest reports of motor vehicle fuel distribution s in California, according to Richard E. Collins, the chairman of the state board of equalization. On the basis of the distribution of 184,300527 gallons of gasoline in September, the board assessed a tax of $5,529,015.85. This represented a gain of $706,183.49 or 14.64 percent over the same month of a year ago.

This income was under the $5,815,183.49 reported for August, the highest month since the gasoline tax became effective in 1923.

State Supreme Court Pledges Speedier and Less Costly Justice

Phil S. Gibson, chief justice of California, pledged today speedier and less expensive justice in the appellate courts of the state. In a letter to Philip H. Angell, president of the State Bar of California, Justice Gibson stated: "We expect that the normal period for an appeal will be

Lions Halloween Party For Kids Tonight

Tonight (Friday) is the time set for the big Halloween party the local Lions Club is sponsoring for Menlo Park children. Plans have been made by Ray Fickes, program chairman, to provide many interesting amusements for the young guests.

Races and games as well as a grand march are part of the program and the children should have a wonderful time. Prizes will be given for the best costumes.

If rain should come, the Party will be held at Central school, Mr. Fickes announced. Otherwise it is to be held at Recreation Park.

RAYMOND P. FAIRFIELD IS KILLED IN TRAFFIC CRASH

Raymond Paul Fairfield, 19, well known in Menlo Park, was killed in a weekend traffic accident. He was a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Faber of East Palo Alto .

Young Fairfield's car plunged off an embankment on the LaHonda road, west of Woodside. Requiem mass was said for him Wednesday at the Church of the Nativity. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hass of Atherton were injured in a collision in Burlingame that cost the life of a high school boy, William MacLeod.

Robert Nickerson, 10, 316 Sixth Ave., suffered a fractured collar bone in a Redwood City crash.

Planning Board Discusses Santa Cruz Widening

The proposal to widen Santa Cruz Ave. which has been hanging fire for months was discussed by the planning commission this week but definite action was postponed until the city council makes known its position on the question.

The commission also took no action on a petition for rezoning of a portion of a lot on University Drive and Middle Ave. in order that a store building might be moved onto it. The delay was ordered until property owners in the affected section have had opportunity to indicate their attitude on the plan.

A petition calling for the renaming of Laurel St., filed by a delegation of property owners from Felton Gables.

Board members attending the session were John H. Sullivan, Herbert McKechnie, Mark Loughlin, Cecil L. Baxter and Secretary Bruce Huggins.

IN PALO ALTO HOSPITAL

Ronnie Chappell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Chappell, 873 College Ave., is recovering in Palo Alto hospital from a leg operation.

Baxter Asks Court to O. K. Appointment

Cecil L. Baxter today had on file in superior court of San Mateo county a suit asking that his appointment to the council post of Capt. Hugo May be upheld.

Filing of the suit followed by a week an attorney general's opinion that Mr. Baxter, who is a member of the city planning commission and chairman of the city recreation commission, had legal right to take his fight for the office to court.

Mr. Baxter alleges that Capt. May forfeited his seat on the council by absences purportedly dating over 60 days.

In addition to maintaining that Capt. May now holds an office that belongs to him, Mr. Baxter further petitions the court to award him damages in the amount of the expenses of the court action.

QUUAYLE NAMES SOLDIERS' EMPLOYMENT COMMITTEE

Six members were named to the Menlo Park unemployment committee of the local draft board by E. E. Quayle, he announced today.

They are E. M. Rankin, 479 El Camino Real; E. R. Paolini, Melvin Ave.; Polk Dodson Jr., Ringwood Road; George Walsh, 1524 San Antonio Road; George Cleese Jr., 73 Princeton Road, and G. B. Huggins, 1351 Santa Cruz Ave.

Object of the committee is to assist discharged selective service men in finding employment.

Lowest bid offered for the construction of a six-lane highway through Menlo Park was that of the Union Paving Co. of San Francisco, whose proposal totaled $324,547.

At the same time came unconfirmed reports that actual construction probably would not begin until spring because of the great amount of preliminary work yet to be done, which includes construction of a storm sewer to san Francisquito bridge—southern terminus of the widened highway building job.

Actual construction involved in connection with the project so far as the state highway department is concerned, however, calls for a six-lane highway from Charter St. in Redwod City to the San Francisquito bridge—3.2 miles.

Workmen began moving the E. E. Quayle buildings Monday, and on next Monday another contractor plans to begin moving the Campagne building.

New construction along the highway includes a $600 store at 1365 El Camino, for which the city issued a permit.

COUNCILMEN CLASH OVER $300 BILL OF CITY ATTORNEY FOR EXTRA JOB

Right of one councilman to delay approval of a bill presented by the city attorney for extra legal services was challenged by another at Tuesday's council meeting.

Councilman Bryant, who also is finance commissioner, questioned City Attorney James T. O'Keefe Jr. on a bill for $300 for work on the proposed WPA street improvement program which thus far has failed to materialize.

"Does the ordinance require any details of the services to be enumerated by the city attorney when he presents his bill?" asked the councilman.

Declaring his bill far below the usual charge for such work, Mr. O'Keefe said he would "leave it up to Smith (city engineer) if the fee is not reasonable." The city attorney termed the fee "less than one-half of what I was entitled to."

"I question the right of one man to hold up payment when the two other members of the finance committee have signed the voucher," said Councilman Henry Carroll. The latter said it was not necessary to bring the question before the council as a whole.

Councilman Bryant, who subsequently signed the voucher, cut off further debate by informing the city attorney he had talked the matter over with the city engineer who, he said, had characterized the fee as reasonable.

The council granted the request of the Menlo Park chamber of commerce for a $100 contribution to its Christmas party fund.

Permission was granted Councilman J. E. Cooper to leave the state.

Request of Felton Gables property owners to change the name of Laurel St. to Felton Drive, relayed to the council from the planning commission, was discussed but action was deferred. Renumbering of streets in the district also was petitioned.

PAVING OF SAN MATEO DRIVE IS ASKED BY PROPERTY OWNERS

Proposed paving of San Mateo Drive from Valparaiso Ave. to Santa Cruz Ave. had reached the first preliminary stage today when City Engineer Smith prepared to mail questionnaires to property owners to determine sentiment toward the proposal.

This action was authorized by the city council after Councilman Paul Bryant's plea in support of a petition from nine taxpayers in the affected district.

Present condition of San Mateo drive was termed "deplorable" by the petitioners, who said practically nothing has been done to the street for 12 years. The signers ask that the council authorize a road like Arbor Road, without sidewalks or curbs, which would meet city specifications so it could be maintained by the city after completed.

The petition which Mr. Bryant said was circulated by J. Avery Smith, also bore the names of J. Gensler, Augustus Locke, Max Pope, W. P. Wilson, Thomas Fogel, Chester Eschen, Frank M. Lintner and C. Campbell.

The councilman estimated the improvements, exclusive of sewer laterals, at $4,000.

Cost of surfacing Cambridge St. between El Camino Real and University Drive was $766.35, of which $536.52 was for patching and the remainder for applying the waterproof top coat.

The area covered was 1620 feet by 34 feet, or approximately 55,000 square feet. Total cost was .014 cents per square foot.

"The finished surface was not as smooth as I had hoped it would be," Mr. Bryant told the council. "Part of this was caused by Bloomquist bringing the hot asphalt late,making it necessary to spread the rock and roll the entire street between 2 P. M. and dark, with the result that the surface is not as true to grade as it should be."

PRESBYTERIAN BAZAAR IS SCHEDULED FOR NOV. 7

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church will hold its bazaar in the Social hall of the church Nov. 7 starting at 10 a. m. with a display and sale of all kinds of handiwork. The public is invited to attend the bazaar, which also will feature an afternoon tea.

Members of the Auxiliary emphasize the opportunity it offers to buy holiday gifts.

Missing Woman Is Found Safe

Mrs. William Hammer, 54, who disappeared from her home at 1201 Johnson St. Wednesday afternoon, was found safe late Thursday walkalong Bayshore highway.

Wife of a San Francisco occulist, Mrs. Hammer was reported missing by her husband upon his return home from the city Wednesday. He told police she was nervous and easily lost her sense of direction.

Apparently suffering no ill effects Mrs. Hammer, who moved to Menlo Park about two months ago when her husband bought Mayor Day's former home, was found about 6:30 P. M., and returned to her home.

Congratulations to—

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Seamons, 583 Runnymede Ave., East Palo Alto on the birth of a daughter Oct. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Henderson, Eighth Ave., on the birth Oct. 27 of a son.

H. B. Johnson is Chief Observer of Defense Unit

H. B. Johnson was chosen chief observer of the MenloPark-Atherton Observation unit of the San Mateo defense council at the organization meeting a week ago.

Other officers are Joe Prein, first assistant observer; E. R. Paolini, second assistant, and Harry Hoefler, third assistant.

Mr. Johnson, who was instrumental in forming the local unit, appeared before the city council in behalf of the post Tuesday night and asked the city to meet the cost of part-time telephone service at recreation park, which has been designated as the center of operations for the observation force, which is to cover a radius of 1 1-4 miles.

First maneuvers for the new unit, which will be charged as an aircraft warning detachment, are set for early in December, according to Mr. Johnson.

The council granted the request to finance the cost of the telephone.

Recorder Names Editor to Aid Navy Recruiting Drive

At the suggestion of Secretary of Navy Knox The Recorder today has named George Glover as navy editor, to help the navy in giving ambitious local young men information about the opportunities the two-ocean navy offers them for technical training and advancement as they serve their country in its emergency.

According to an announcement made public in Washington, a limited number of additional men bebetween ages of 17 and 50 will be given a chance, by enlistment in the navy or naval reserve, to get to the top, with big pay, in jobs which by their aptitude and as a result of examination they show themselves fitted, from among nearly 50 different trades and vocations. These include such callings as aviation machinist, dental technician, photographer, diesel engineer, radio engineer, electrician, welder, storekeeper, and baker. Enlisted men also may qualify for commissions as officers.

Beginning this week, the navy plans for a limited time to accept

John Lomax Portrays Gangster Bodyguard in "Nothing But the Truth"

A. Clay Gaines is holding biweekly rehearsals for the play, "Every Man for Himself," the next production of the Menlo Players Guild which will be presented at Central school Friday and Saturday nights, Dec. 5 and 6.

The play is pure, old-fashioned, screwball farce. From the moment the curtain opens on the first act until the windup of the third, droll situations and crackling lines are certain to keep any audience amused.

The laughs come from zany comedy and a series of situations which get funnier as the play progresses. Not only is there smart comedy in the play, but there is plot and "good theatre."

The characters wander in and out of the plot and seemingly, their daft antics have no connection with the play, until they are finally fitted into their proper spots in the puzzle. The dialogue is peppy and the good-natured cracks at Hollywood are different and funny.

John Lomax, who made his first Guild appearance as a whimsical and kindly minister in a one-act play and who played the rather worldly bishop in "Nothing But the Truth" has an entirely different part in this production. He portrays "Mr." Grogan, a gangster's bodyguard, who talks out of the side of his mouth and is plenty tough.

Carl Waldner will make his initial bow to a Guild audience in the role of a harassed man who is dragged on a house-hunting expedition by his wife and a determined, if somewhat feather-brained "woman real estate agent."

George Terhune, who appeared in "Nothing but the Truth" and recently in "Comin' Round the Mountain," has the part of a movie hero—a big, strong he-man from the west. As Humphrey Harrison, in this production he finds himself in a tougher spot than anything he has done in the movies.

George's little son, Don Terhune, will play the role of a spoiled son of adoring parents. A perfect little nuisance (in the play) this is Don's debut as an actor and he is delighted with the whole business.

The Menlo Players Guild can be counted on for a well-staged, capably-acted performance. Remember, the dates are Dec. 5 and 6.—E.C.-B.

LOCAL CHILDRENS' BIRTHDAYS FALL ON HALLOWEEN

Halloween is essentially a children's season. Hobgoblins, lighted pumpkins and all the folk lore symbolical of All Hallows Eve represents the sort of thing in which the average child takes a keen delight.

In Halloween week falls the birth date of a number of Menlo Park children, one of whom, Betty Ellis, was the guest of honor at a party given by her mother, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Friday night at her home on Menlo Ave. Betty celebrated her 12th birthday anniversary.

The children played games and later in the evening enjoyed refreshments. The table centerpiece was a birthday cake with chocolate and orange frosting.

After the guests were seated, the lights were extinguished and in a bowl on the table, little lighted candles floated in water.

Among the guests was her cousin, Patricia Ellis, a former resident of Menlo Park who is now living in Oakland. She was a weekend visitor at the Ellis home. Another honored guest at this affair was "Aunt" Elizabeth Lyon. Others present included Emma Lindquist, Patsy Furbush, Nancy Cowman, Patricia Lauthbury and Audrey DeHaven.

Mavis Skare Married to Vincent Cleveland in San Diego Ritual

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Skare have returned to their home in Menlo Park after a weekend trip to San Diego, where they attended the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mavis Beverly Skare, to Vincent Tate Cleveland.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. Homer Winfield and Harry Skare of Menlo Park.

The wedding was solemnized in the First Presbyterian Church of San Diego by the Rev. Thomas Law Coyle. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a maroon velvet afternoon dress with a matching hat and accessories, and her corsage was orchids. She wore gold earrings in antique design, a gift of the groom.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Nancy Boyd, was dressed in a soft wool biege street suit with brown hat and accessories of the same color, and wore deep pink sweetpeas as her shoulder flowers.

The groom wore the dress uniform of the U. S. Marines. His brother, Warren Cleveland, acted as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Skare chose for her own costume RAF blue with hat and accessories in the same color and her flowers were gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith, the groom's stepfather, and his mother attended the ceremony. Mrs. Smith wore a street ensemble of deep blue with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

After a short honeymoon, the young couple will occupy an apartment in San Diego.

MINERAL AND VITAMIN RICHES FOR HEALTH

YOUR DEFENSE: HEALTH

Help yourself to your share of health by giving your meals plenty of health-giving foods and ward off the lack of resistance to disease that comes from not getting enough of properly balanced foods.

Economy and health will be the key words this season and throughout the country you homemakers will have to take your part and build the backbone of the country by feeding your families food that builds strong bodies, steady nerves and high morale. Fortunately, good, health-building food is not just achieved through more buying power, but through wise buying. You can use canned vegetables or low-priced fresh vegetables, cheaper cuts of meat, milk and canned fruits.

You've been hearing lots about vitamins, so check yourself on them:

Vitamin A is for resistance to infection, for growth and general well-being. You'll need it for your eyes, too, for poor vision and night blindness are common symptoms of the body's lack of this vitamin. You'll find it aplenty in milk, butter, vegetables green and yellow, fruits and eggs. It's also the one vitamin which you can store in the body.

Vitamin B1, sometimes called thiamin, is for appetite and good digestion. This vitamin's for good morale. If you're lazy, grouchy or nervous look into the matter. The chances are that you've been neglecting pork, liver, meat, enriched cereals and enriched bread and bread flour, and peab

Vitamin B2 is sometimes called vitamin G also and also goes under the name riboflavin. If your nails have been brittle and grow slowly and break off easily or your hair and skin are generally in poor condition, add some of these good sources of vitamin B2 to your diet: milk, liver, eggs, cheese, lean meats and leafy vegetables.

Gums bleeding? Teeth decay easily? Perhaps you're missing out on vitamin C, for this is the vitamin that goes right into your system and helps you have good teeth and bones. If your diet contains plenty of citrus fruits (lemons, oranges, grapefruit), tomatoes, fresh fruits and vegetables, you won't have trouble with teeth, bones, or wounds not healing.

Vitamin D boosts vitamin C and calcium into action, makes them utilize the other vitamins and minerals. Vitamin D isn't easy to find in foods, although eggs, salmon, sardines and herring contain some of it. Milk can be fortified with this vitamin and then it is called "irradiated." Most common way of getting the vitamin is either through milk of this type or by taking cod liver oil in winter, sunbaths in the summer, for it is formed in the skin by the ultraviolet rays of the sun.

That's the round-up of vitamins. Now, how about minerals?

You've probably heard that you need calcium to build good bones and teeth, but did you know that you need it to help your blood to clot when you have a wound and that you need it also to regulate your muscle contraction? No food keeps people from getting old indefinitely but if you've good calcium deposits, you'll at least postpone old age for awhile. Milk and green vegetables burst with calcium so use them every day. Don't forget the salads: carrots, cabbage, and celery aren't too expensive in winter and they're calcium-rich.

Phosphorus works together with calcium in building bones and nerves. Milk, cereals, meat, cheese, eggs, nuts—all these have a good phosphorus content.

Iron's a marvelous pep-you-upper. Not only does it guard against lagging energy but also digestive disturbances and general irritability.

Iron goes to work and makes red, red blood cells that are just about the hardest working cells you'll ever find. The red blood cell shuttles between your lungs and your 7,000-mile-long circulatory system dropping off the oxygen and carrying out the carbon dioxide.

You need lots of iron so don't miss a day on iron foods. That means you'll be eating plenty of liver, molasses, oatmeal, dried apricots, eggs, whole wheat, lean beef, cabbage, oysters and raisins from now on.

Iron by itself is apt to be a bit lazy. It needs copper to make it get to work, so be sure to have prunes often, whole-grain cereals, oatmeal, dried fruits, liver and oysters at some one of your three meals.

Iodine spells power. It is released to your system by the thyroid gland which is near the Adam's apple. Sluggishness, mental and physical, are the result of lack of iodine or thyroid deficiency.

Seafood contains iodine as well as garden vegetables. Salt has been iodized to help out general deficiency, and cranberries if raised in low-lying lands near the sea are a popular source of iodine.

Magnesium balances calcium, and as you're getting your milk you'll be getting magnesium, too. Other sources are green leafy vegetables.

That's the line-up. You'll notice that many foods contain both or several kinds of essential minerals and vitamins. Of course that should make the job you have to do easier.

Liver and Vegetable Pie.
(Serves 6 to 8)

¼ pound salt pork
1¾ cups cooked pork liver, cut in pieces
1½ cups sliced onions
1 cup diced carrots
2½ cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
Black pepper and salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Fry salt pork, add liver and brown slightly. Cook onions and carrots until tender in boiling salted water. Drain, measure liquid and add water to make 2 cups. Add vegetables and meat to liquid, then remaining ingredients and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Turn into greased casserole.

Cover casserole with the following: Mix 1 cup sifted flour with 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in 3 tablespoons shortening, add milk (about 6 tablespoons) and mix until soft dough is formed. Pat to ¼-inch thickness, cut several slits on top. Fit over casserole. Bake in a hot (450 degrees) oven, 20 minutes.

THE GOLDEN CHURN OPENS TODAY AFTER REMODELING

Equipment Added; Facilities Enlarged

An enlarged and remodeled Golden Churn was reopened to the public today by Mrs. Ollie Fickes.

Under her management for the last six months, the Golden Churn has become more and more popular with local patrons.

The creamery and lunch was closed but a week but in that time workmen have completely redecorated it, seats have been upholstered anew, the seating capacity has been enlarged and new refrigeration and other modern equipment installed.

Decorating was under the direction of Dick Crawford and electrical work by the Midgely Electric Co. Other firms that assisted in the remodeling and restocking of the Churn include Morris Refrigerators of Palo Alto, Harry M. Johns of San Jose, the Menlo Food Center, Menlo Meat Market (Harry M. Doughty), Acme Glass Co. of Palo Alto, George W. Cleese and the Peninsula Automatic Music Co.

The Churn, now six years old, was started by Al Giannotti and John Facchino as an ice cream store and operated as such until 1937 when lunches were served after Ann Horn took over the management of the place.

Six months ago Mrs. Fickes and Mrs. Ann Gilbert leased the business and this partnership continued until a couple of weeks ago, although Mrs. Gilbert still is connected with the firm.

STRAY DOG WINS HEARTS OF RESCUERS; NOW RUNS HOUSE

RAGS

—Aldwell-Fiske Photograph

This is the story of a shaggy little dog named Rags. He is the property of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bauer of Menlo Ave. On second thought, it might be more truthful to say that Mr. and Mrs. Bauer are his property, for aside from paying the rent Rags virtually runs the house.

On two occasions, the story of Rags might have had a sad ending. His first escape from tragedy was luck, his second was his own amazing courage and determination.

Two years ago on Decoration Day Mrs. Bauer saw a forlorn bedraggled little puppy crouched in terror on the center of the highway in San Mateo. Traffic was unusually heavy because of the holiday and the frightened little dog did not know where to turn.

Mrs. Bauer ran out and picked him up and she and Mr. Bauer then brought him to their home. He was half starved and ill with fright, but a few months with the Bauers fixed all that.

The story would have ended at this point except for the fact that Mrs. Bauer is a nurse and was away from home so much she felt the dog was lonesome. So she gave him to a friend who lived on Parnassus Ave. in San Francisco.

The friend was delighted with Rags. She fed and petted him and to get him used to his new home, she kept him locked in the house. Rags had other plans. He missed the Bauers and made up his mind to get back to them. Two days went by. The first chance he got, Rags sneaked out and started the long trip back to the Bauer home.

When the friend missed him, she telephoned to Mrs. Bauer, the San Francisco pound was notified and the search was on.

No word came for a few days and then a woman in Daly City found a little black puppy lying in the street in front of her house. He was half dead from lack of water (it was August and unusually hot) his little paws were bleeding and he was in a pitiable condition.

She telephoned to the pound and from her description, they knew she had found Rags. Mrs. Bauer was notified, went to Daly City and returned him home. Sick as he was, he was obviously happy when he saw her.

This brings Rag's story to date. Some of you may have seen the little fellow on the streets in town. He goes to market with his mistress and carries his own dinner home in his mouth—a can of dog food or a package of meat. If Mrs. Bauer stops to talk to someone, he drops his package and waits, but makes no attempt to open it.

Mrs. Bauer says he loves to carry his own food, but hates to carry groceries, and a grape fruit will send him home in a fit of sulks.

The day his picture was taken, he took the post with his package of meat in his mouth and waited quietly until the photographer had finished. We wanted a second shot and suddenly Rags went temperamental in a big way. He refused to pose. He tore around the garden after an imaginary cat. He went up tree trunks after equally imaginary birds. He jumped over the fence, tore around, then opened the gate and walked through. Then he went over the fence again.

Mrs. Bauer coaxed, scolded and pleaded. Mr. Bauer got very firm. The photographer offered bribes of hot dogs. It was no use—he wouldn't pose. When everybody was completely worn out and ready to call it a day, Rags walked in front of the camera, sat down and we got the picture you see here.

Rags is an Australian sheep dog. Black with white breast and paws. He is choosy about his friends but when he has included you in his set, he greets you with howls of joy and generally winds up by knocking you flat.

There isn't enough money in the world to buy Rags from Lester Bauer and his wife.—E.C.-B.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

The county health department reported four cases of communicable disease in southern San Mateo county for the week ending on Oct. 18. Three were in East Palo Alto and one in Atherton.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP

Edward L. Eyre, who recently resigned from the Atherton council, this week was named a life member of the Atherton police committee in recognition for his services.

Retired Tobacco Firm Executive, Wife Will Reside in Atherton

Mr. and Mrs. William A Frutiger have taken a home in Atherton and contemplate making their permanent residence on the Peninsula.

Retired last April, Mr. Frutiger had been with the P. Lorrilard Tobacco Co. 48 years. He was treasurer and Pacific coast manager when he retired.

The couple spent the last six months at Ray's resort, Mendocino county, where Mr. Frutiger enjoyed fishing most of the time.

Asked what she did to kill time while her husband was after trout, Mrs. Frutiger replied that "we had taken a little two-room house and as it was the first time I ever had the chance, I puttered around with a flower garden."

Mr. Frutiger is going to try gardening as a hobby at his Atherton place and if that palls he says he can always fall back on fishing and golf.—E.C.-B.

Aid to Armed Forces Seen as Major Red Cross National Defense Program

Practical help to soldiers and sailors preparing to defend America's shores has become the major task of the American Red Cross in Menlo Park and the entire nation, Mrs. P. E. Bush of the local Red Cross chapter, declared today. All the many branches of the organization are contributing time and effort to this program of aid to the armed forces, she reported.

Financial support for this essential work must come from membership funds received during the annual roll call to be held from Nov. 11 to 30, Mrs. Bush pointed out. She explained that aid to the armed forces is only one of the activities financed from membership receipts.

Mrs. Bush said the Red Cross is obligated by its congressional charter to act as the link between the military forces and the folks back home. To accomplish this task the Red Cross, she added, has had field directors in military and naval stations as they are opened. It has begun a $1,250,000 building program to construct Red Cross headquarters buildings at 62 army camps.

There are more than 300 field directors and assistants on duty at 185 stations and hospitals covering aproximately 900 points of field service, she reported. "These men," she explained, "are trained to serve as advisors to soldiers and sailors with social or economic problems. If a service man's family is involved in the problem, Red Cross workers in the home town chapter form a liaison to bring about an effective solution."

Pointing out that the Red Cross is the official non-military agency operating within military establishments, Mrs. Bush said approximately 65 medical and psychiatric social workers are stationed in hospitals of the navy and general hospitals of the army. The organization is completely furnishing, staffing and operating Red Cross recreation buildings erected at 65 army station and general hospitals.

In another phase of the program Red Cross volunteers render friendly service to bed patients and aid in the recreation program for convalescents. Other volunteers make comfort articles to supplement those provided by the government.

More than 10,000 Red Gross nurses, members of a large reserve of the nation's finest registered nurses, are being assigned to army and navy duty, Mrs. Bush said. The Red Cross also is registering medical technologists and dietitians for possible military service.

"It is imperative that our community contribute its full share to the upkeep of these and all other Red Cross services connected with national defense," Mrs. Bush declared. "We can do this only by going over the top in the roll call to be held throughout the country Nov. 11 to 30."

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Well, boys, the big weekend is almost upon us. Be sure to load up with enough clothing and equipment. Sitting around shivering isn't much fun, and the measure of how good a camper you are can be taken by how comfortable you are on this two-day camporee. Be certain to remember your permission slips if you haven't given them in already.

We have no further news on the local old paper drive but we understand these drives are to be carried on as a part of the regular scout program for some time. Atherton troop 163 participated in the drive and collected about a ton of paper, so congratulations to them on this excellent showing for the defense program.

Tom Pilling successfully passed his tenderfoot tests, which was very rapid progress, as Tom joined up only a matter of a few days ago.

George Gilboy passed his firebuilding tests (2nd class) the past week. Both Tom and George belong to troop 108.

Troop 107 will have about 10 at the camp, and Atherton troop is expecting about 12 of their group to attend. We have not a full list of names but those who can be counted on are Gene Malcolm, Phil Helfrich, Chuck Wells, Walter Schreb, Dan Roblick and Leonard Rogers. Troop 108 will have two patrols, namely the racoons: Bud Ryan, Dave Sanguinetti, Jim Hanley, Larry Johnston and Tom Pilling; and the panthers: Ed Kevin, Jack Carlton, Tommy McGowan, Robert Brown and Bob Vitale.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

CENTRAL SCHOOL

Oct. 28, the sixth, seventh and eighth grades had a movie of Norris dam.

The party was a success. Two mothers, Mrs. Boggini and Mr. Olson helped make it so.

Oct. 27 was Navy day and almost every class read about Navy day or answered questions on it.

The Girls club had its second meeting this year. The girls folded Christmas seals while Martha Emery, president, conducted the meeting, and Secretary Shirley Blaisdell wrote on the board all that was going on.

The Boys club had an election. John Buckman is president and Wendell Johnson, vice president.

The P.-T.A. will have a dance on Saturday (tomorrow) evening. the public is invited.

SEQUOIA HIGH SCHOOL

Twenty-nine students from Mr. Hunt's salesmanship class at Sequoia high school will work one hour a day during the school week from Nov. 3 to 19 in Palo Alto and Redwood City. Gertrude Dell' Aquila and Marjorie Cabaniss of this city will work in a Palo Alto store and Marguerite Rosso has been assigned to a Redwood City store.

The noon recreation group has decided to join with the Hi-Y in order to broaden its activities. Those who will join from here are Hank Needham, Jack Gillespie, Jerry Carleton and David Oram.

Eleanor Holsworth is one of the members of the Sequoia high school theatre orchestra which played for the P.-T.A. Variety show last Saturday.

Frances Wilkerson is one of the girls, who as part of their classwork in cooking classes are preparing breakfasts which they serve to their classmates.

Billy Casey and Robert Osario entertained other members of the freshman class at a class party at Central school Saturday. Mrs. W. T. Casey and Mrs. Gilroy were the chaperones. In addition to the two hosts, guests were Lucile Barrett, Betty Banks, Joe Roberts,, Margette Shepard, Shirley Sherwood, Mary Louise Vissere, Lloyd Altton, Clem Lerits and others.

less than one year, from the entry of judgment to the filing of an opinion." The average period now is three years.

He believes this speed up will be the result of a "determined effort to clear up all arrears in cases" of the supreme and appelate courts of the state.

The united work of the State Bar and the State Judicial Council, furthermore, he believes will simplify court procedure to the point where it will be even more speedy and less expensive.

Under a new law, sponsored by the State Bar, the Judicial Council has power to remake the rules of appelate procedure with the aim of "streamlining" California court procedure. The new rules will be presented to the next session of the legislature.

State Supports Move Calling for Hiring of Men Over 40 Years Old

The California Employment commission in cooperation with the state's coordinating committee on reemployment today inaugurated a statewide program, urging employers throughout the state to hire the "man over 40" as a national defense measure. Toward this end, the employment department has set up 81 units in field offices to aid jobless persons past 40. The commission in a letter to 60,000 California employers said "you will contribute to community welfare and serve your own interest by doing all within your power to cooperate in this program of reemployment for those over 40 years of age."

Mrs. Joseph Horn Gives Party for Her Niece

Mrs. Joseph Horn was hostess at a birthday party at her home on Yale Road Saturday afternoon at which her niece, little Sandra Fickes, was guest of honor, the day being her 4th birthday anniversary.

The house was decorated in Halloween colors as was the table that the children gathered around for refreshments. A big cake with four candles was placed in the center of the table.

The children played games and Mrs. Horn provided bon bons, balloons and "noise makers" for them. What caused the hostess to think it necessary to add to the noise a group of youngsters can make without outside help is something of a problem—but that's Ann Horn—anything for a laugh.

Among the guests were Dolly and Jackie Giannotti, Carol Cooney, Evelyn Johnston, Mary Frances Healy, Janice Wymer, Roberta Brown, Janet Cooney, Barbara Giddons, Pixie McGowan and Jeanie Boyer.

DISASTER AID SURVEY STARTS

FIREMEN LIST ALL USABLE FACILITIES

If disaster should strike this area Menlo Park district firemen will be prepared to lead in relief work.

This is the result of a survey ordered by Fire Chief Thomas Cuff in an effort to determine what and how many facilities are available for use in a major emergency. The survey is being conducted by the firemen on their days off.

To Mrs. Frances Doherty, fire commission secretary has been assigned the job of compiling a list of city and county officials in this area,together with their addresses, and other information. Other assignments include:

Assistant Chief L. Brown, utility officials; Capt. George Carter, fire department officials and apparatus; Lieut. W. Brown, oil firm officials; Lieut. E. Safety News

PARENTS — You have a very grave responsibility in teaching your children to be safe. Your teaching must be by example as well as by word.

What good does it do to tell children they must always cross the street with the green light, when the first time you have them down town, you take them by the hand and lead them across the street against the red? It happens every day in any city.

Is it different when mother or dad is along? Not in a child's mind, it is not. It you can do it, so can they.

Make your habits safe and you'll have a better chance to make safety a habit with your children that will last throughout their lives.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

Astride the Laredo-San Antonio highway, Van Hassek's infantry drove ahead while successive waves of men melted across open terrain where there was little benefit of cover. Desperately the enemy commanders fed in reserves from their superior hordes of men out of which they could pay the red costs of their error in underestimating an enemy who had not been expected to offer serious resistance here.

What Van Hassek's infantry lost to their slower bolt-action rifles they made up by auxiliary arms, light machine guns, mortars of many calibers, light and heavy tanks, superiority of artillery. Shrapnel, mortars, and musketry now beat down on the American centers of resistance with the red convolutions of some Satanic scourge escaped from hell. Van Hassek's men burst ahead until Boynton could see the distended eyes and gaping, grimacing terror of their faces, as they bared themselves to a death against which they did not dare turn their backs.

The enemy poured on into Boynton's strong-point. Boynton became aware that the survivors of his men were breaking, stubbornly fighting with bayonets, grenades, and musketry as they fell back. Now he saw enemy tanks rolling in on his men, tanks whose steel armor deflected the regiment's ancient 37-millimeter guns that were being used until the new anti-tank guns could be reduced from paper models to actual weapons. Boynton turned to rally his men, giving to his voice the full strength of his lungs.

"Up and at 'em!" he cried. "To hell with the swine!"

His voice rose above the storm. A second time he raised his voice, then he staggered drunkenly, spun half around, and fell as consciousness snapped from his brain and his life snuffed out.

Having committed themselves to this folly of frontal attack, the Van Hassek commanders fed in reserve after reserve regardless of cost in their determination to break through with as little delay as possible. Once they succeeded in driving a wedge deep enough into the American center, they knew that the whole American sector would roll up in a chaos of defeated regiments.

But to accomplish this, Van Hassek's infantry must drive through succeeding lines. Capturing one, they faced another equally resistant. What the Americans lacked in auxiliary weapons they made up by their unshakable fighting spirit, a discipline hard as steel that put men through the terrors of battle and turned a deaf ear to impulses of flight and surrender. Even succeeding waves of tanks failed to terrorize them or drive them out of position. All the advantages of auxiliary weapons failed to avail.

One surging mass of enemy infantry engulfed the right of the 23d, and left of the 9th Infantry, late in the forenoon. Now the storm rose to new heights of desperation as Van Hassek's infantry sought to break on through.

Five hundred yards the invader progressed, swamping one strongpoint after another. The Second's main line was threatened by a wedge that would force it back to its regimental reserve line. A second attack launched against that line, if it succeeded, meant inevitable defeat.

Into the melee came rushing American reserves, a co-ordinated counter-attack by the 3d Battalion of the 23d and the 2d Battalion of the 9th. They hit with a vigor that halted the menacing enemy masses. Their semi-automatics, pouring death as fast as fingers could work triggers, gave to the attacking American battalions the infantry weight of twice their numbers.

Van Hassek's men fell back, dug themselves into fox holes, waited. A lull came into the firing. The artillery roared on, machine guns, light cannon chattered and boomed. Now the volcanic eruption of battle lost something of its volume. The cries of the stricken could be heard, plaintive wails of "First aid!"

Van Hassek had lost the first round. He had committed the brash folly of underestimating his enemy. In his haste to blast his way through to San Antonio his conceit had misled him to disregard sound tactical principles. No matter if the enemy had done the same thing by making a stand, the next move now was up to Van Hassek.

At the division command post, General Mole had slept through the morning preparation fire. Only by vigorously shaking him had his aide been able to rouse him out of his sleep. Dosing himself with strong coffee, Mole coolly watched the development of attack. The Van Hassek strategy had a right to suppose that the Second would hold lightly and run off to successive delaying positions.

Anxiously, Mole and his staff scanned information as it came in over the field wires and from observation planes. Van Hassek's tortuous columns still were moving up from Laredo. But no fresh movement of reserves was located in the immediate American front. Both the Brownsville and Eagle Pass columns were several hours' travel from striking range of either flank.

But discipline held up, and a stern, stubborn fighting spirit pervaded the ranks. That word came from the commanders of infantry who had taken the brunt of the losses, it came from the artillery regiments which were still being pounded by long-range artillery.

Against odds of men and weapons there remained the valor of a manpower that could be conquered only in death, or lawful order of retreat.

CHAPTER XII

As succeeding battle reports from the Texas front poured into Washington over the radio, Captain Benning was assailed by growing restlessness at his own inaction in the face of momentous events. Throughout the day he had lolled about the cafes along Connecticut Avenue looking for the Van Hassek staff spies, Fincke and Boggio. Evening found him holding the bag.

That red welter of the 11th Infantry's retreat from Laredo had been reported in meager but graphic detail along with the heroic stand of the 5th and 12th Cavalry Regiments. Captain Boll's achievement in piloting his men through the storm of Van Hassek's air attacks had stirred the country.

Benning and Boll had been classmates at the Military Academy, had gone to the 11th Infantry together as subalterns. Benning had served with the 11th for nearly a year until he went to the air corps, from which service he had been snatched for military intelligence duty. Breathlessly he followed every scrap of available information on the 11th.

Benning was picking at his dinner at the Mayflower when there came a final flash on the Boll incident.

"You heard this afternoon of the gallant young officer, Captain Boll of our infantry," the broadcaster announced. "You recall that, although wounded in the cheek, he ignored his own wound and saw his men through to the Second Division south of San Antonio."

The announcer paused, his voice shook with feeling as he read a brief dispatch from San Antonio that brought the incident of Boll to tragic consummation:

"Captain Henry Boll, 11th United States Infantry, died early this evening of wounds received in action. Captain Boll collapsed a few minutes after reaching the hospital and died this evening without having regained consciousness."

For a long time Benning sat looking across the blur of somber faces in front of him, then he left his unfinished dinner and went out into the street. The soldier spirit flared into revolt within him against this soft spot of his own present duty when there was a man's role on the border.

He walked to the Shoreham to get himself in hand. Even Flagwill's assertion that the Coalition spy nest was more dangerous to the country than Van Hassek's present invasion brought him small comfort. But he finally reminded himself that he had a job to do and not until he had done it would there be hope of transfer back to the line of the Army.

Washington, the whole country, was in a state of furor. All day Benning had been shut off from the War Department with its staggering problems, black uncertainties, and crushing workload.

Official reassurance was being fed out over the radio to those sections of the country outside the immediate reach of Van Hassek's invasion. They were told there was no immediate danger of new air raids. The Army was pushing through its interception nets and extending its intelligence service to bring timely warning well in advance of any future raid.

New Orleans, Galveston, and other cities were being organized against air raids that could not be circumvented for the time being. It was a matter of avoiding crowds, of getting underground against demolition bombs and gas. People who could leave those cities were urged to take refuge in towns and hamlets until the danger could be brought under control, although tens of thousands needed no such warning and were pouring into the country with such of their effects as they could carry along.

In New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other great centers of population, organization against air attacks had been feverishly undertaken. The Middle West and West were told there was no present need for alarm. However, some highly alarming, if unconfirmed, reports of a mysterious brewing of mischief in the Orient, had the coast cities on edge.

Mobilization of the four existent Regular Army and eighteen National Guard infantry divisions was reported sixty per cent complete. The Third Army was to concentrate in Texas as rapidly as possible, but the War Department refused to give out military details. No censorship of military news had been clamped down as yet and the press was printing, without restriction, whatever news it could get.

DEFENSE QUIZ

Q.—I cannot find the word "Defense" anywhere on the Defense Savings Stamps I have bought. Are they merely Postal Savings Stamps or does my money invested in these Stamps go into the Defense Program?

A.—The money you use to purchase these Stamps goes definitely into the Defense Program. The Stamps bear the words "America on Guard," which indicates that they are an integral part of the Defense Program..

Q.—What is the Treasury's purpose in putting Defense Savings Stamps on sale in retail stores throughout the Nation?

A.—To make it as easy as possible for Americans everywhere to buy these Stamps, which, as everyone knows, may be exchanged at many post offices and banks for Defense Savings Bonds.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps now are on sale at most retail stores.

FOR HOME AND COUNTRY

The United States Navy this week launched a widespread campaign for recruits for its two-ocean Navy—America's first line of defense. For the young man uncertain about what course he will chart in civil life, the Navy offers abundant opportunity for training in as wholesome an atmosphere as it is possible to find.

This recruiting drive cannot fail; and it will not. Combined with the opportunity to serve our country, the Navy offers youth trades, adventure, fellowship. Discipline so necessary to youth, the safeguarding of his health by excellent medical attention as well as that which comes from well-balanced diets—these and many more advantages await the youth capable of passing the Navy's admission tests. No young man faced by life's perplexities, or wandering aimlessly along without definite plans for the future should overlook the opportunities the Navy offers. Visit your nearest recruiting office; there's no obligation. Parents, too, are welcome to investigate what the Navy has to offer our boys.

IS THERE NO CEILING?

From the California Taxpayers association the information comes that local government expenditures increased 42 per cent in the five years between 1934-35 and 1939-40—rising from $389,000,000 to an unprecedented peak of $552,000,000. State expenditures in the same period soared from $166,000,000 to $223,000,000, or 34 per cent. In addition to this, it is emphasized that tremendous increases have been made in federal government spending, both for non-defense purposes as well as defense.

And with local and state government costs continuing upward, the question arises when, if at all, is the ceiling in such ever-increasing outlays to be attained. It doesn't seem prudent to expect the taxpayers to shoulder this added—and in many instances unnecessary, burden when the country is called upon to pay more and more taxes that the federal government must levy in order to foot the bill for national defense. The opportunity is at hand for local governing bodies in California to give Mr. John Taxpayer as much of a break as possible by trimming every fund possible to the minimum and, too, by eliminating altogether the needless jobs and bureaus that hardly can be classed as essential in view of existing conditions. Or do public officials want to give Mr. Taxpayer a break?

Mentally Healthy Soldier Needed for Modern War

High Selection Standard Required in Supplying Army With Men Equipped to Meet Hazards of 'Blitz' Tactics.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

At a recent White House news conference the President was asked whether he thought there ought to be a lowering of the physical, mental and educational standards for admission to the army.

The question came up at the close of a long dissertation by Mr. Roosevelt on a report from the army which seemed to reveal a shocking state of the national health. It was based on figures which showed that nearly 50 per cent of the selectees rejected for service were ineligible because of deficiencies in these three categories. It did look as though Americans, as a people, were pretty sick.

The President's answer to the question of lowering the standards of admission was an emphatic negative. Very little attention was paid to this response at the time and the stories which went out over the air and the wires that day were chiefly concerned with the program for healing the physical ills of selectees at government expense.

But that part of the picture, as I learned when I talked with a prominent psychiatrist, is only half of it—or less.

Lowering the standards of mental requirements would, in case of war, mean a terrific psychopathic casualty list, the taxpayer would have a terrific bill to pay and the efficiency of the American fighting forces would be immeasurably impaired.

Record of Last War

Let's look at the record of the last war, when the mental hazards were only a fraction of what they are today with a thousand machines harnessed for destruction.

Briefly, the story is this:

The government of the taxpayer has paid out nearly a billion dollars for the benefit and care of mental cases among veterans of the last war.

This sum represents 20 per cent of all benefits paid to veterans and their dependents.

There are 92,231 such mental cases and a third of all veterans confined to hospitals are mental cases. It is true that some 21,000 of these men cannot prove that their plight is traceable to their military service, but they are on Uncle Sam's expense list just the same, and they would not be if they had been kept out of the army in the first place.

Of course, all of these 9,000 mental cases could not have been spotted by the draft boards in 1917 and 1918. Not all cases of mental weakness or potential weakness can be spotted now. But the army now has a wealth of experience on the subject and the Veterans Administration is co-operating with many local boards in this effort. Twenty years study has made these government doctors expert in discovering hidden weaknesses in the human mind. Some of the nation's greatest psychiatrists have offered their services to the army.

Today, of course, there are many reasons why mental qualifications count more than in the last war. In the first place, modern warfare requires greater self-discipline on the part of the individual.

Special Training Needed

In the old army the squad, composed of seven or eight men, was a unit. The squad has now been abolished. Modern ordnance—small and heavy arms—is much more complicated. Each man must be specially trained for a special task and frequently the responsibility formerly relegated to a group, falls on the individual.

Greater skill to operate modern arms and equipment is necessary. Also, the devastating effect of mechanization creates a greater mental strain. An example of this is the terrorizing effect of the noise of dive bombers. When the French troops first heard the stukas they threw down their arms and fell flat on the earth.

As Dr. Martin Cooley, consultant of the Veterans Bureau in Washington, puts it:

"When one considers how the warfare of today has stepped up in intensity and tempo with the stuka divers, the panzer divisions, the elements of deadly surprise and audacity and the dropping of bombs of high explosives weighing as much as a ton, it becomes evident that combat troops will have an immense strain on their morale, and it must be expected that a man with unstable nervous system or a flaw of character will crack under the strain."

In the last war an effort was made to weed out the men, who, from their medical histories or as a result of examinations, were considered unable to stand up under the strain of service. Strangely enough, it was the medical officers rather than the line officers who were inclined to be lenient in accepting questionable cases, and the medical department of the army records that 8,640 cases of record were discovered and the men retained in the army against the advice of the neuro-psychiatric officers.

Many of these men broke down when they reached camp before they heard a gun fired. With this record staring them in the face, it is no wonder that responsible war department officials are anxious that there be no let-down in the standards for admission to military service.

Pan American Child Congress

War and politics are no respecters of children. Bombs and shells spare neither nursery nor school. And politics, frequently, like the bad Samaritan, goes by on the other side, even in peace-time.

The Pan-American Child Congress, whose purpose is to build sturdier, happier, wiser future citizens of the Americas, was established in 1919. Plans are now under way for its first meeting since 1935 which is to be held next spring in Washington.

Four times during the last six years, the meeting of the congress has had to be postponed. The first came in 1938 when Nicaragua found that it could not go ahead with plans for being host to the conclave. Then, when the delegates were all ready to take the boat the next year for Costa Rica, where the postponed congress was to meet, it was cancelled again, indirectly because of war. The real reason for this last postponement, perhaps, was indicated in a headline in a San Jose, Costa Rica, newspaper, which read: "Is this a Pan American-German Congress?" Germany had announced that it would send exhibits and take part in the meeting and presumably Nazi influence in Costa Rica was strong enough to make it unwise for the local government to protest. In any case, the meeting was again cancelled.

NAVY DRIVE ON

new qualified men for training. These men will be sent to one of four naval training stations and may have a chance to go to a navy trade school even before assignment to the fleet. During this period they will be given regular navy pay and the navy's free schooling is valued at hundreds of dollars.

"Never in the history of the United States has there been greater opportunity for loyal young Americans to serve their country and build their futures than right now," said Secretary Knox.

In outlining the many advantages offered by enlistment in the United States navy Mr. Glover, the navy editor of The Recorder said: "It is possible for a bright young man to increase his pay seven times during his first enlistment and he can earn as much as $126 a month. This monthly figure is actually worth much more when it is remembered that the man has few living expenses and is provided with the finest of medical and dental care.

"You have all your food and lodging, and also your original outfit of clothing provided by Uncle Sam at no cost. In addition there are free sports and entertainment—even to the latest Hollywood pictures. On top of this you get free travel and adventure in colorful places—a thing few civilians can afford.

"When you consider the size of this country and the fact that the navy will select only 15,000 applicants a month from many times that number throughout the United States, the quotation, 'many are called but few are chosen' will apply to young men interested.

"Navy men are a 'hand-picked' lot. Candidates must be men of more than average intelligence and ambition, of fine moral character and must have the written recommendation of at least two local townspeople."

As navy editor, Mr. Glover has just received from Washington a supply of free illustrated booklets for all men interested and, in addition, will welcome inquiries from young men who wish to look into the new and greater opportunities the navy now offers for training the future civilian careers as they serve their country now in its emergency.
